Mayor's Message

Dear citizens and visitors:

It has been a hectic and productive summer in New Glasgow with many special events taking place with energy and enthusiasm because of our many amazing volunteers and generous corporate sponsors. Despite far too many rainy days the warmth and talents of our people always shines through. And finally, we are seeing some sunshine which we hope adds to the tourism activity and visitation we are seeing.

The Town of New Glasgow is proud to be a lead sponsor and home community for such summer events as the Johnny Miles Running Event Weekend, New Glasgow Riverfront Jubilee, the Festival of the Tartans, the Race on the River Pictou County Dragon Boat Festival, and the Play the Pros Hockey Day in Pictou County. We have also been very pleased to support the Seniors Festival held in Trenton and a special day being held soon for our veterans in the Town of Westville.

Emerging artists to take up residence in New Glasgow

The population of New Glasgow goes up in September as three young NSCAD University graduates arrive to take up residence in the scenic Pictou County town.

The NSCAD-New Glasgow Community Studio Residency Program is a new grassroots initiative, designed to jump-start the artistic careers of three recent graduates. NSCAD University also collaborates on a similar program with the Town of Lunenburg, a program now going into its sixth year.

While in New Glasgow, the artists—Annalise Prodor, Katie Roux and Krissi MacKenzie—will be based in a studio provided for them in the newly renovated Community Destination Centre on Dalhousie Street. Besides doing their own artwork, they'll work with elementary and secondary school students on art projects, and offer workshops and lectures to New Glasgow area residents.

"I feel really lucky to be given this experience," says Annalise Prodor, who graduated from NSCAD University in the Spring with a Bachelor of Fine Art. "I think it will be a great transition year. It's not shoving me into the real world, but it's pretty close."

Originally from Edmonton, Annalise is particularly intrigued by the idea of small-town life and is looking forward to sharing her work with local residents. As for what direction her own work will take, she doesn't have any preconceptions. "I want to keep it as open as I can and let the experience give me the inspiration."

"We are excited to welcome these three new artistic talents to our town and look forward to many opportunities for community engagement and interaction," says New Glasgow's Director of Community Development GERALYN MacDONALD.

"The diversity in mediums they offer is exciting and will be inspiring and of great interest to both our local arts community and the general public. We look forward to them hosting many workshops, exhibits and presentations," continues MacDONALD.

"The year-long experience offers a wonderful opportunity both to build a great program in New Glasgow and for these emerging artists to build their experience. We're delighted to introduce these amazing young artists to the community," explains Sharon Blanchard, director of NSCAD's School of Extended Studies.

Community Spotlight

On August 18, author and columnist Jodi Delong gave a presentation at the Carmichael-Stewart House entitled "Late Blooming Flowers." Sponsored by the Pictou County Historical Society, the Town of New Glasgow, and New Glasgow Communities in Bloom, all proceeds from Delong's presentation will go to the restoration of the museum sun room.

New Glasgow installs GreenGym equipment

The Town of New Glasgow installed new GreenGym equipment in early June at the Westside Community Centre and Rotary Park as part of its commitment to promoting healthy lifestyle options.

Made in Canada, GreenGym is an outdoor fitness centre. The equipment is brightly coloured, inviting, weather resistant, and ideal for many different types of exercise, from cross trainers to strength training. Instead of weights, users harness their own body weight for resistance.

They are an innovative way to promote health, fitness, and exercise in communities. They also provide opportunities for outdoor fun with family and friends.

The new equipment at these sites includes a leg press, triple stepper, warm-up and stretch station, hand and leg bike, triple push-up and dips, wide range of ages, including teenagers and seniors. Children under 12 should not use the equipment.

“Seniors will be taught to use the outdoor exercise equipment to prolong mobility and bone density at no monetary cost,” explains New Glasgow Recreation Manager Norma MacLeod about future plans for the GreenGyms.

New Glasgow’s two GreenGym sites are made possible through contributions from the federal chest press, elliptical, double chin-up bars, double tai chi and corefit.

GreenGym equipment is safe for users of different skill sets and a

New Horizons for Seniors Program (NHSP). The NHSP supports projects led or inspired by seniors who make a difference in their communities and in the lives of others.

Terry Fox Run returns to New Glasgow

The internationally-renowned Terry Fox Run is returning to New Glasgow once again this year.

After a two year absence from the town, the Terry Fox Run returned last year with the help of local volunteers and businesses. The result was a small but effective event that raised just under $500.

Organizer Ben MacLean hopes to see a much larger run this year and great support from the community.

“We have seen such an amazing amount of passion and commitment for causes such as Relay For Life, Johnny Miles Marathon, Walk to Cure Juvenile Diabetes and many others from this community,” MacLean says.

“We would like to re-add the Terry Fox Run into the mix of major fundraisers in our community and I am confident that people will deliver based on the inspiring message that the name Terry Fox brings and also the amazing stories of survival and determination that sadly affect so many people,” he continues.

MacLean is calling on members of the community interested in joining the organizing committee or volunteering to send an email to ngterryfoxrun@gmail.com as soon as possible.

Provincial Director Barbara Fickes says, “the community of New Glasgow has generously supported the for all those wonderful supporters,” explains Fickes.

The Terry Fox Run has become an annual non-competitive charity event held in numerous regions around the world in commemoration of Canadian cancer activist Terry Fox and his Marathon of Hope.

The aim is to raise money and awareness for cancer research.

The event was founded in 1981 by Isadore Sharp, who contacted Terry in-hospital by telegram and expressed his wishes to hold an annual run in Terry’s name to raise funds for cancer research.

The event is held every year in September. Since its inception, the Terry Fox Foundation has raised over $550 million dollars. In 2002 alone, there were 620 event sites in fifty-three different countries.

The Celtic Circle offers atmospheric concert-going experience

When Jannine Howell noticed an historic New Glasgow church was up for sale, she felt compelled to rescue the century-old landmark.

Now a year after renovating the former First United Baptist Church of New Glasgow into a performing arts centre, the Celtic Circle is one of the most memorable venues for the arts in the community.

The Antigonish native is also in the process of restoring another historic property in Antigonish, the Silver Glen Centre for the Arts. Howell says both projects are an extension of the integral role culture has always played in her life.

"I come from a family where the arts and culture were very important. When I saw this beautiful historic property available with so much potential, I knew I needed to take it over or else it could be lost. It already had been vacant for a year," explains Howell.

Renovations paid particular attention to preserving the unique character of the building. Howell believes the love that has gone into the former church since its construction in 1896 is obvious.

"It is a big undertaking when there is a change of use for a building and a new category of requirements. We did a lot of upgrading to the plumbing and electrical. We tried not to change too much, just enhance what we could," Howell recalls.

She feels some of the Celtic Circle's best features are its acoustics.

space, it can be used for conferences, presentations, wedding services, and more.

Howell's up-coming plans are to collaborate with other businesses and community organizations to evolve the Celtic Circle's reach into New Glasgow and beyond.

She is also considering a membership program after being inspired by similar practices used at Fables in Tatamagouche, another happening entertainment venue.

Up-coming performances at the Celtic Circle include Sylvia Tyson of the legendary Canadian folk duo Ian and Sylvia. Scheduled for Friday, November 4, it is only one of four stops she is making in the Maritimes along with Halifax; Saint John, New Brunswick; and Summerside, Prince Edward Island.

The Celtic Circle has also joined forces with Glasgow Square last spring to launch the inaugural Music Shapes New Glasgow Series and was an off-site venue for aspects of the 2011 New Glasgow Riverfront Music Jubilee.

Located at 195 Forbes Street, the Celtic Circle is housed in an historic former church

"It was built for sound. Your voice just carries from the stage to the back of the room. We recently had a one-woman play and we didn't even need to amplify the actress' voice. It's phenomenal," Howell enthuses.

The Celtic Circle is available for other uses as well. With a fully-stocked commercial kitchen and banquet

Anchor Motors donates $25,000 to Wellness Centre

Pictou County Wellness Centre Campaign leaders recently announced on August 10 that Anchor Motors in New Glasgow has pledged $25,000 in support of the campaign.

"Everyone involved in the Wellness Centre campaign is so appreciative of and thankful for the ways that the community has stepped up and this donation is no exception," says Murray Hill, campaign co-chair.

"Every donation we receive makes a difference and brings Pictou County one step closer to this state-of-the-art facility," explains Hill.

Anchor Motors has been serving Northern Nova Scotia since 1968 as the region's premier retailer of new and pre-owned Toyota vehicles. They have a proud history of supporting a variety of local charities in the community.

"We're proud to have the opportunity to give back to the community and to such a worthy cause," says Marc Comeau, owner of Anchor Motors.

"We're excited to see the progress with construction and look forward to celebrating the opening of the building in 2012," he continues.

In recognition of this significant contribution, the large parking lot will be named in honour of Anchor Motors. There are a number of opportunities for donors to be permanently recognized within the centre.

The Pictou County Wellness Centre will be a place that supports an active and healthy lifestyle, a place to exchange business ideas, a place for future stars to practice and play sports, and a place for residents to gather and achieve goals as a community.

jazz grooves. His music captures traditional singer-songwriter style at its essence.

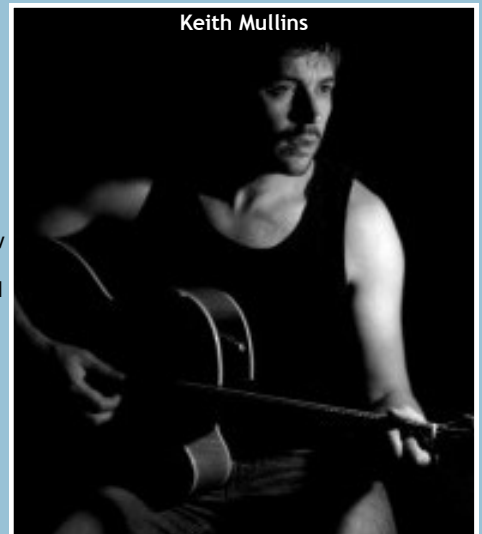

Ian is equally at home in front of a large festival audience or in a quiet coffeehouse. His energetic stage show and honest presentation have quickly gained him recognition as a solid performer and lyricist.

The release of his third studio album, "And Now the Fun Begins," is generating a lot of buzz, including an East Coast Music Association Award nomination for Konica Minolta Male Solo Recording of the Year. He also has nominations and wins at the Music Nova Scotia Awards and East Coast Music Awards under his belt as well.

Keith Mullins, who many will know as the long-time drummer for Steven Bowers, has played music all of his life. His roots are in Cape Breton Island where a family and culture of music fostered his passion and ability. At the age of 14, Keith started entertaining bar crowds with fellow band-mate Steven MacDougall who is now a member of Slowcoaster.

Having since completed a music degree and self-directed studies in Cuba and Africa, Keith has turned his passion into his profession. He has toured the world performing with numerous artists, such as Lennie Gallant, Bruce Guthro, Jimmy Rankin, Gordie Sampson, Dave Carroll, Jennifer Roland, Havanafax, Caledonia, Jimmy Swift, Garrett and Dutch Mason, Melissa McLelland, Sarah Slean, Paula Cole, Divine Brown, and many more.

Keith has also developed and facilitated some highly successful workshops. Starting with drumming workshops established eight years ago, this venture has blossomed into a salsa workshop with an eight piece Latin band partly from Cuba and salsa dancing. He has also conducted a songwriting workshop with Keith and Steve Bowers. He has delivered these workshops to groups of all ages, across Canadian schools, at special events, and at festivals.

Tickets for this fantastic show are limited. Admission is $15 each. Tickets are available at Glasgow Square. Call the box office now at (902) 752-4800 to reserve your place.

Festival of the Tartans marks 54th celebration of Pictou County's Scottish roots

The 54th annual Festival of the Tartans kicked off from August 4 to 7 with a full weekend of Scottish athletics and culture.

This year many of the events were sold out, including the Kilted Golf Tournament at the Glen Lovat Golf Club. The Highland Dancing competition was filled to capacity with participants and samplings of the famous Scottish dish haggis also went quickly at Tartan Field.

The festivities kicked off on Thursday with a shotgun start at the Kilted Golf Tournament at Glen Lovat Golf Club. The official opening was held at the historic town bell in downtown New Glasgow soon afterwards.

"The Festival of the Tartans has been a significant part of the history and heritage of our town for more than five decades. The festival allows all of us the wonderful opportunity to celebrate, experience and keep alive our wonderful Scottish traditions of music, dance, language, athletics, history and cuisine," said Mayor Barrie MacMillan at the opening ceremony.

Later in the afternoon, High Crest Place hosted a ceilidh followed by the New Glasgow Development Commission's Tartan with a Twist celebration in the downtown core. Featured events included music, a barbecue, and antique car show.

Highland dancers perform the sword dance at the Glen Haven Garden Party

On Friday, Glen Haven hosted a well-attended garden party in which residents, their families, and visitors were treated to highland dancing, piping, and fiddle-playing on Glen Haven's spacious green grounds.

Saturday saw Tartan Field transformed with the Highland dancing competition, Highland heavyweight competition, a pipe band parade, a massed pipes and drums concert, and genealogy workshops. The star-studded Concert Under the Stars ended the busy day with performances from Rawlins Cross, John Spyder MacDonald, and Fleur Mainville.

The festival concluded on Sunday with the traditional Kirkin' o' th' Tartans service at Trinity United Church. Special guests included Minister of National Defense, the Honorable Peter MacKay; Nova Scotian Minister of Justice Ross Landry; and New Glasgow Mayor Barrie MacMillan.

"The Festival of the Tartans committee is inspired by the attendance during the festival, particularly at the Tartan Field on Saturday. The festival is not only thriving, but is growing," says Festival of the Tartans President Brenda MacKay.

Race on the River raises over $150,000 at 10th anniversary races

On Saturday, August 6, the Race on the River Pictou County Dragon Boat Festival reached an important milestone, raising $150,719 for the Women Alike Breast Cancer Survivors Society, Pictou County Prostate Cancer Support Association, and the Special Olympics Northern Region.

The 2011 pledges brought the total amount raised over its 10 year history to an impressive $1.138 million.

"Race day saw thousands of paddlers, volunteers, families and visitors gather on the banks of the East River for a fun filled day of races and activities. Community support over these past 10 years has always been at the heart of our festival and this year was no exception. Every gesture, large or small contributed to the success of this great family event. We truly appreciate and value your support," says Race on the River President Lesley Anne Sobey.

The Crombie Crushers brought in the most overall pledges with $44,000. Glen Hynes was the top corporate fundraiser with $15,000 while Florence Van Veen was the top non-corporate fundraiser with $3,862.

For its 10th anniversary celebrations, festival organizers arranged for a free concert with Lennie Gallant on Friday, August 5, as a thank-you to the community for their support. Other memorable moments on the Friday evening celebrations included a performance by Doris Mason who dedicated a song in honour of Emma Lee Stewart, local cancer spokesperson and vocalist.

Minister of National Defense, the Honorable Peter MacKay; and Premier Darrell Dexter were also in attendance Friday night. Dexter dotted the eyes of the ceremonial dragon boat to mark the opening of races and Mayor Barrie MacMillan delivered a welcome.

Race day concluded Saturday afternoon with the moving Pink Carnation ceremony to commemorate those fighting cancer and those who lost their battle.

Message from the Mayor

Events such as these are an important part of our community identity and spirit and several have also become major tourism draws. If you are visiting please drop by Town Hall for a New Glasgow lapel pin and other mementos.

This summer, I have had the pleasure to attend each of our major festivals and I continue to be amazed and impressed by the dedication of the volunteers and the outstanding generosity of the sponsors in our town and region.

The diversity of our events are also to be commended. New Glasgow has become a beehive of activity due to regular performances at Glasgow Square Theatre, The Celtic Circle Cultural Centre, as well as Downtown venues such as Murdoch Park, the New Glasgow Library and Carmichael-Stewart House Museum. The streets are indeed “alive with the sounds of music” and more.

Our local New Glasgow Farmers Market has also been bustling with activity and has become the place to meet every Saturday morning. It is a wonderful source for locally grown produce, specials arts and crafts, and delicious baked goods.

During the summer we have had opportunities to promote New Glasgow on national and international stages.

New Glasgow partnered with the Pictou County Cruise Committee in welcoming cruise ship officials to our region in preparation for our first cruise ship stop in September 2012. We are very proud to be part of the Pictou County team showcasing what our towns and county have to offer to these representatives of the Saga Pearl II based in the United Kingdom.

We were also pleased to introduce New Glasgow to national Communities in Bloom judges who visited from Manitoba and Saskatchewan in early July. We showcased our efforts in environmental stewardship, urban forestry, tidiness, community spirit, heritage, greening and much more.

In late June, we also welcomed international visitors from Scotland, as the Chief of the Clan MacMillan and the Historian for the Highland Family History Society included New Glasgow on their tour of the Maritimes.

In conclusion, I want to draw your attention to the comprehensive Town Hall Report that has been completed and is presented on line through the Town’s web site www.newglasgow.ca.

Limited hard copies are also available at Town Hall. We are most interested in feedback from you, our citizens and businesses, on what priorities you would like your mayor and council to focus on for the upcoming year and a half of our mandate.

It is an honour to serve the citizens of New Glasgow and I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

Barrie E. MacMillan

Mayor
Town of New Glasgow

Meet you at the New Glasgow Farmers Market

Now in its fourth season, the New Glasgow Farmers Market continues to grow with additions to the riverfront dome.

Before the start of the season, the dome received enhancements in the form of a fully equipped kitchen and public washrooms.

Now visitors can enjoy a freshly made breakfast or lunch while they shop for Pictou County’s freshest vegetables, baked goods, and meats. Handcrafts, artwork, jewelry, knitwear and much more are available for purchase as well.

A long-standing favorite, live entertainment continues to brighten up the market every Saturday morning. Buskers have included talented local fiddle players, guitarists, bands, and singer-songwriters.

The New Glasgow Farmers Market has also been striving to grow its outreach into the community. “New Glasgow has a wonderful, vibrant and fun farmers market. But we believe the greatest farmers markets extend beyond themselves, and actively build community,” says Market Manager Natalie Gordon.

The community table has consistently been utilized by local charities, community organizations, and representatives from the Department of Natural Resources to present information about their latest programs.

The market has also hosted special guests. On July 9, veterans who served in WWII, Korea, and Afghanistan were the guests of honour at the market. They participated in a meet-and-greet with the public and enjoyed breakfast with Minister of National Defense Peter MacKay.

For more information about the New Glasgow Farmers Market, contact Natalie Gordon at nataliegordon98@gmail.com.

New Glasgow Riverfront Jubilee Rocks the River for 16th annual concert

David Myles
Sunday, July 31

On July 31, the 16th annual New Glasgow Riverfront Jubilee wrapped yet another exciting year of live entertainment showcasing artists from across Canada.

The Jubilee delivered on its theme of “rockin’ the river” with an outstanding line-up featuring the likes of 54-40, Big Sugar, The Trews, Matt Mays, Hey Rosetta!, Platinum Blonde, The Stanfields, Alert the Medic, Dave Gunning, Christina Martin, David Myles, Carmen Townsend, Fleur Mainville, and many other talented artists.

explains Executive Director Carlton Munroe.

“Attendance for the weekend, while solid, was less than anticipated driven mainly by poor weather conditions on Saturday and the draw of concert goers to Moncton to attend the U2 concert. We will be working hard in the coming weeks to close the books on the 2011 event and begin planning for another successful event in 2012,” he continues.

In addition to the main stage, the Jubilee offered many other opportunities to take in live music throughout the July 29 to July 31 weekend. The Celtic Circle hosted a Songwriters’ Workshop and Circle with Dave Gunning, Carmel Mikol, and Carmen Townsend while a Children’s Jubilee, Youth Stage, and blues concert were held in Carmichael Park.

Christina Martin
Sunday, July 31

“The New Glasgow Riverfront Jubilee Board of Directors is exceedingly pleased with the line-up the 2011 Jubilee was able to offer. We delivered three nights of stellar local, regional, and national talent at an affordable price. In short, we put on a great show and demonstrated that small communities can deliver big music experiences,”
